

Dear esteemed Security Council delegates,

Welcome to this year's edition of the Rotaract Global Model United Nations, taking place in Beirut, Lebanon. My name is José, and I will be your director during committee sessions. I am currently studying Political Science and International Affairs with a minor in Legal Studies at the Lebanese American University. I am looking forward to a fun and stimulating debate. Our chosen topics are ones that highlight ongoing threats to the international community. They are key elements in international relations that trigger both agreements and conflicts. We are confident that you will draft impressive and innovate resolutions within the conference and come up with interesting debates!

Yours sincerely,
